World Café Questions

Question 1: Imagining Possibilities

How could the SAFS Club contribute to campus-community food sovereignty by strengthening relationships, developing initiatives, and creating opportunities for collaboration between Bishop's University and surrounding communities?

- What activities, projects, or partnerships could the club develop or support?
- What could begin now, and what could develop within one year, three years, and five years?
- Who could be involved, and what roles could they play?

Question 2: Creating the Conditions

What would the SAFS Club need to develop and sustain these initiatives and contribute to campus-community food sovereignty?

- What relationships, resources, infrastructure, knowledge, funding, or institutional support would be needed?
- How could the club collaborate with existing campus and community organizations, programs, and initiatives?
- What barriers or challenges might arise, and how could they be addressed?

Question 3: Participation, Collaboration, and Moving Forward

How could the SAFS Club create opportunities for students, faculty, staff, and surrounding communities to participate in shaping and sustaining campus-community food sovereignty initiatives?

- How could the club encourage participation and collaboration across campus and surrounding communities?
- What opportunities could be created for shared decision-making, leadership, and collective action?
- How could the club maintain continuity, partnerships, and community involvement as students graduate and new members join?
